

David S. Hibbett

David Hibbett is Professor of Biology at Clark University. He is interested in fungal systematics, comparative analyses of character evolution and diversification, evolution of nutritional modes in Basidiomycota, phyloinformatics, and historical biogeography. He is the current Vice President of the Mycological Society of America, Executive Vice President of the Society of Systematic Biologists, and a participant in the Assembling the Fungal Tree of Life (AFTOL) consortium.